The pottery is available for individual bookings at various times during the week.

The timeslots available vary but independent potters can often book at these times:

- ◆ Mondays 11am
- ◆ Wednesdays 1.15pm
- ◆ Fridays 1.15pm
- ◆ Fridays 4.15pm
- ◆ Saturdays 11am

If these times don't suit, it is worth phoning to see if you can come at another time—quite often the answer is—yes!

Please check the website calendar or phone us to confirm dates available. Each session lasts up to 90 minutes.

Our studio is small and each session only has space for 6 independent crafters so book early to avoid disappointment!

We will give you up to three balls of clay to make something. You will be given table space and the necessary tools to hand-build, or if you have booked the wheel you can throw pots throughout the session.

Assuming you have made something that will be safe in the kiln, we will fire your creation (it will either be white or red depending on which clay you chose) and it will be available to collect in two or three weeks time, or you can book another slot to glaze it and we will fire it again ready for you to collect later.

This option to do independent clay-work is not suitable for people who have never used clay in a pottery— come to a few of our Clay Classes first, or come to a four-session Clay Club, in order to learn the basics, or if you want to learn to use the wheel book some of our starter sessions first.

Although learning to become a potter is a life-time's job, it doesn't take much to learn the basic rules that will give your pottery a chance of surviving the high temperatures of the kiln, and once you feel confident to go-it-alone booking independent time in the studio is a lovely way to develop your skills.

If you want more than the occasional 90minute booking, have a look at becoming one of our "Associates".
